

Where in the World?

A global geography podcasting quiz!

We are about to launch a new podcast quiz show created by students from all over the world focused on learning about geography, community, and culture. We want your students to be a part of it!

To participate in the creation of a “Where in the World?” podcast just follow these directions:

1. Plan and create a short podcast featuring your students giving creative clues about where they are in the world. You may choose your actual location OR you can choose to describe somewhere else in the world. You can use the scaffold below to help guide your production.
 - Be creative and have fun!
 - Describe your location - You can use longitude/latitude information, as well as clues about continents, physical and historical landmarks.
 - Describe unique cultural attributes of the area.
 - Are there people in the area you are describing? If so, what do they do? What brings them there? What would make someone want to visit this place?
 - Are there any famous historical figures or events that originated in this place?
 - You must include a contact email address at the end of the podcast, so that participants can email their guesses to you.
 - Try to keep the podcast’s duration to 5 minutes or less.
2. Once the podcast has been recorded, edited and compressed into an MP3 or AAC file, upload it to your school’s web server. If you don’t have access, email us (dschmit@intelligenic.com) and we’ll find a place to post your file.
3. You’ll need to email the URL (Web Address) for your audio file and a title to us. This information should be emailed to our project coordinator, Anna Adam at where@digihear.net
4. Anna will be producing and updating the RSS Feed for this project. The address for this podcast feed will be <http://www.intelligenic.com/where/rss.xml>
5. If someone emails your class with an incorrect guess, you should respond with some additional clues to get them closer to the answer.
6. If someone emails your class with the correct answer, you should send them a post card that represents your location. Ask them to send one back from where they live.

To participate in the quiz show for the “Where in the World?” podcast just follow these directions:

1. Subscribe to the podcast at <http://www.intelligent.com/where/rss.xml>
2. Listen to each posting and use your best Internet research and deductive reasoning skills to figure out the location being described in the podcast.
3. At the end of each posting an email will be given. Use that email to send in your guess. If you are wrong, you'll get some additional clues. If you are right, you'll get a postcard in the mail from your new podcasting pals.

Questions and additional ideas can be sent to Dan Schmit
(dschmit@intelligent.com) Kidcast: Podcasting in the Classroom